Portobello – a beautifully peaceful village in the north of Sardinia

Portobello is an oasis of calm: the exclusive holiday resort on the northern tip of Sardinia is an amalgamation of 200 upmarket villas in a landscape conservation area. It faces Corsica and enchants with gorgeous beaches and the unspoiled nature of Gallura. With endless walking routes along the stunning coast, it’s a paradise for hikers, and there’s also the option to hire a boat from Portobello harbour to enjoy a romantic tour by sea. Portobello itself is home to a beautiful, small bay that is still pleasantly peaceful even at the height of summer. A restaurant that is open all year round and a supermarket ensure everyday needs are covered.

Incidentally, the houses in the holiday resort were built under strict regulations. For instance, every villa must have a plot of at least 3,000 square metres and contain maquis shrubs. Far from the jet-set lifestyle on Costa Smeralda, nature and beach lovers will find an undisturbed refuge amidst wild, authentic Sardinian landscape.
